

President's Message

We had a great meeting last month to discuss all the plans for the Convention. The slate of speakers is set and the meals are ordered. Ticket sales are started and that's a good indication that a successful convention is ahead of us. I have already booked the Friday off so we can get ready for the festivities.

The shows and auctions will soon be starting. This will give us a chance to meet with old friends and compete against them on the show floor or the auction floor. There is always lots of fun at whatever you are doing.

We have had the awards meeting and there is a good amount of participation in this year's recipients. It would be nice if all the clubs were involved, then the awards could be distributed to all the member clubs.

Thanks to Ed for another fantastic crock pot full of hot food on a cold blustery day. All that were there got a belly full. The draws have been a lot of fun and we will continue with them. It is always nice when you can win something to take home. Thank you to all that have donated. If your club has not sent a rep to the meetings you are missing out on all the news and goings on in the association. It opens doors to many with ideas and experiences and we can learn from the expertise of others. The CAOAC website is constantly being upgraded with information about all that CAOAC has to offer all the member clubs.

If a little person dressed in green comes up to you and asks you a question

Take a chance

It's magically delicious

Ron Bishop

So Who are these speakers anyway, you ask??

Now, if some of you are like me (the Editor), you may not know these names from Adam, so, I thought I’d print their bio here for you, so you can become familiar with who they are and what they bring to the convention.

Bob Fenner— Born in Rhode Island, but grew up in the orient, due to his father’s military career. He has worked for a Betta culture business, collecting and processing marines in Manila, livestock wholesale worder for Pratt’s in San Diego, and eventually formed his own aquarium service business. It eventually became an employee-owned corporation with aquarist retail outlets, fabrication (principally large acrylic systems), water feature construction, manufacturing and distribution divisions. Subsequent to the tax law changes, water-shortage "scare", and general decline in the California and U.S. economy in the late eighties these businesses were sold and liquidated. He then worked for three years as a consultant and buyer for the mass-merchandise PetCo in their bid to upgrade their stores, incorporating livestock.

He writes articles and books for the diving/underwater natural history and ornamental aquatics interests. He browses the electronic bulletin boards to "chat" with others daily, and often travel, to go "hashing" (sort of running), writing and photographing with friends around the world.

He’s been an avid hobbyist since first memories. Active in the local SDTFS from the sixties; helped in development of all three goldfish/koi clubs in San Diego. At times more active in scientific (AVMA, IAAAM, ASIH) and industry professional/business associations.

So Who are these speakers anyway, you ask?? (Cont'd.)

This is his life's work and passion. The central thread to everything he has attempted in writing, presentation or action in the interest has been/is "to enhance people's love of their own lives through an appreciation of the living world". He sees the hobby/business evolving, much like and approaching Western Europe, with a real interest in biotopes, the underlying science, understanding the technologies employed... This is an era of consumer awareness; there are less Fenner Bioaquarists, but more conscientious ones that are becoming more aware and demanding value.

Gerald Griffin—He first started keeping fish at the age of nine and by ten bred his first fish species Colisa lalia, followed shortly by Colisa chuna (sota), Colisa fasciata and labiosa. At the age of twelve he read All About Bettas by Walt Maurus and fell in love with wild bettas. The only problem was that in the 1970s he couldn't find any living in Oklahoma. By the time he went to college, he found articles on wild bettas in the school library and joined the International Betta Congress and started corresponding with various fish keepers, and found some wild betta stocks and started collecting them and writing articles.

Around the year 2000, he once again got hit with the betta bug and started keeping domestics again. As soon as he did, the wild betta bug hit him again and he went crazy again collecting them. He currently runs over 80 tanks dedicated to a number of different fish. As he became more involved in his local fish club, the Oklahoma City Aquarium Association, he started keeping a variety of species and has since spawned various barbs, African cichlids, killifish, native American fish, American cichlids, livebearers, and a number of miscellaneous fishes, and have recently diverged into saltwater fishes (clownfish and seahorses). However, wild bettas and anabantoids will always be his first love and the primary fish he keeps.

He's am currently the President of the International Betta Congress and the BAP chair of the Oklahoma Aquarium Association, the Treasurer for the American Labyrinth Fish Association, and has also been the President of the Oklahoma Aquarium Association's Tulsa Chapter, as well as their HAP and Presentations Chair.

Ken McKeighen Jr.—Ken McKeighen Jr. fondly remembers his first fish he purchased when he was 10 years old, a coffee can full of bait minnows he purchased for 10 cents. He was 10 when he won his first art contest, first place with an ice cream social poster at his elementary school. He was 11 when he discovered his first fossil, a brachiopod (a type of shelled filter feeder). He also "grew up" along the rivers and in the woods of Indiana. From these beginnings Ken began his journey into the natural sciences and as a fish and wildlife illustrator. Ken became fascinated with killifish while in high school and led to his joining the American Killifish Association in 1973. Ken's fascination with fish includes everything from lampreys to modern bony fish. Ken's interest in paleontology has led him to keep almost all the primitive fish types from fresh water including lampreys, bichers, gars, bowfins, lungfish, sturgeon, and several of the bony tongues. Ken has also kept a number of marine fish and invertebrates as well as most of the fish types available. Ken has been a member of the British Killifish Association, the North American Native Fish Association, and many other clubs, groups and associations. Ken has also donated many articles and illustrations to these and other associations including the German Killifish Association and the Japanese Killifish Association. Ken has also done presentations to both the American Killifish Association, NANFA, and many AKA affiliate groups from coast to coast. Ken has also become noted for his killifish illustrations which have been used as illustrations and as awards around the world. Ken has painted over 1,650 killifish paintings which have been proudly presented as awards since the Hull Group of the British Killifish Association commissioned him for 14 paintings in 1990. Ken has also illustrated many other fish, both from fresh water and marine. Ken has also been to almost every type of fish habitat available in North America from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. These habitats include the following: swamps to desert springs, from the Great Lakes to small ponds; and from headwater streams to the Mississippi River.

Ken is currently both a life and distinguished member of the American Killifish Association and donates the McKeighen Award for the best North American Killifish entry at the AKA's national convention. Ken also supports the George Maiher Fund with art donations that are auctioned at the convention to help raise funds for killifish research. Ken is the host of the Under the Sea Radio Show on Blogtalk Radio. The show brings many issues and information to it's listeners from aquariums and fish to conservation issues. He is also the host of the Fine Art of Paleontology, a show dedicated to paleontology and the prehistoric past.

One of Ken's talks will deal with pupfish, their care and captive maintenance along with what he has observed at the different habitats these interesting fish live in, including Devil's Hole, NV. Ken has kept a number of species of these interesting, little fish. Ken is the banquet keynote speaker and this presentation will deal with the evolution of the freshwater fish. Ken will take us on a journey from the fishes' humble beginnings as motile ascidian larvae to the masters of the world they live in.

Rachel O'Leary—Rachel O'Leary of Mount Wolf, Pennsylvania has been in the hobby since childhood but has gotten increasingly active in the past decade. She is currently operating over seventy tanks with interests that range from the micro to monster. She has a special focus on dwarf freshwater invertebrates including snails, shrimp, crayfish, and aquatic crabs as well as all freshwater nano fish. Rachel is currently housing over one hundred different species, all of which are in the nano category. She also has a passion and interest in gar and polypterids and houses several species.

She is currently breeding catfish, many species of shrimp, snails, pseudomugil rainbows, dwarf crayfish, West African dwarf cichlids, discus, ancistrus and hypancistrus plecos, as well as a range of livebearers and egg scatterers. Her tanks range in size from ten gallon to 220 gallon.

Rachel is an active member and on the board of the Capital Cichlid Association, as well as a global moderator on Aquaria Central and a moderator at MonsterFishKeepers. She actively attends conventions and travels to speak at clubs and conventions on her invertebrate and micro fish interests. A big advocate of rallying regional support, Rachel also sponsors many clubs and events around the United States.

She imports from around the globe to redistribute and help share with hobbyists around the country. Rachel is very focused on education and information for her customers, and personally deals with each individual to help them make the best choices for the tank.

A proud mother of three, she actively donates livestock to schools around her area, and the country.

Future projects include a lot more travel to increase awareness of invertebrates and nano fish as well as furthering the growth of her fish room through increased breeding efforts and availability.

MARCH 2015

We're on the web
www.caoac.ca

What is CAOAC?

We are often asked this question. CAOAC stands for The Canadian Association of Aquarium Clubs. We are a non-profit corporation and are composed of member aquarium, reptile & amphibian, pond & water garden, and similar clubs or societies from across Canada and the Northeast United States.

CAOAC was founded in 1959 (incorporated in 1963) to allow the clubs to work together for their common good and the good of the hobby. Legislative issues, promotion of events, a judging system, national awards, assistance for new clubs, & liability insurance are just a few of the things on which clubs can work and benefit together. Recently, a Fish Rescue Program has begun. This has been developed with outside partners who also have an interest in our hobby and environmental issues.

What are the benefits of being a member?

National awards program to honour those in member clubs who have achieved success in breeding, plant propagation, or other endeavours related to the hobby.

National judging program to train and certify judges as well as set standards that all can use to judge their shows.

Third-party liability insurance program to protect club members in case of an unfortunate accident at one of their functions.

National forum to express views and opinions.

National voice to deal with legislation which may impact negatively on our hobby and to put forward constructive ideas to politicians and bureaucrats.

A chance to become involved with people who share similar interests with yourselves.

If you are interested in joining CAOAC as a club or as a private (non-voting) member, please contact our Membership Chair, see under committees for email address.

In person meetings are held monthly (except July & August) in Waterdown, Ontario (unless otherwise posted) at the Optimist Hall where clubs which are within driving distance send their representative (s) to discuss issues of the day as well as the future.
